FAQs

We understand you may have questions about the financial aspect of your reproductive health care. Below are answers to some of the most common questions we receive from our patients.

Will Saskatchewan Health cover any of my fertility treatment fees? Saskatchewan Health insures most of the investigations to determine cause of infertility and the most appropriate course of treatment in your situation. This would include services like consultations, some ultrasounds, and fertility testing. The fees listed in the above Fee Schedule are not insured by Saskatchewan Health.

Is fertility treatment income tax deductible? Most costs relating to your fertility treatment may be claimed as a medical expense on your income tax return. Section 118.2 of the Income Tax Act can provide more details on which treatments and medications qualify as a deductible expense. Be sure to save all your Aurora Reproductive Care receipts for income tax purposes. Aurora can also provide a list of appointment dates for travel expenses.

How much will IVF really cost? The cost of IVF for most of our patients ranges from $8,000 to $15,000. The total cost is dependent on a number of factors such as the amount of medication you require, if you have extra embryos you would like to freeze, etc.

What types of payment will Aurora accept? We accept cash, debit card, Visa, and MasterCard. For large service fees, we also accept certified cheque and bank draft.

Do you provide financing to pay for my treatment(s)? No. It is best to speak with a financial institution about arranging financing to pay for treatments. Some options they may offer include a bank loan or line of credit, using a financing company, or using a health trust if you are an incorporated or self-employed business owner.

Will Aurora work with other clinics if required? Yes. We can coordinate and monitor your IVF or frozen embryo transfers from other fertility centres, including testing, treatment and prescriptions. We charge an IVF Satellite Monitoring Fee for this service.

Will I receive a refund if I cancel my treatment? Partial refunds may be given if for some reason, treatment cannot be completed. The refund will be based on administrative and/or treatment costs incurred before you cancel your treatment.
